MINDFUL'S ONLINE, ON-DEMAND INTRODUCTORY COURSE IN CHILD, ADOLESCENT + YOUTH MENTAL HEALTH ASSESSMENT

The Mindful Introductory Course (MIC) is an introduction to core principles in assessment, formulation, diagnosis and feedback in child, adolescent, and youth mental health. It integrates the latest evidence on teaching and learning, and the expertise of experienced child, adolescent and youth mental health workers, to create an engaging and interactive online and on-demand course that teaches both theory and skills.

Structure

Preparing to meet the child/adolescent/young person and family:
Core principles of developmental psychopathology and of engaging children, adolescents, young people and caregivers

Beginning to connect with and understand the family unit in the family meeting

Beginning to connect with and understand the child or young person in the individual meeting

Risk assessment:
Making sense of risk of harm to self

Beginning to connect with and understand parents and caregivers in the parent meeting

Diagnosis and formulation:
Starting to make sense of strengths and difficulties

Feedback: collaborating with children, young people and their families to find a path forward

Participant feedback

"I have much greater confidence in being able to conduct an assessment, write up a formulation and how to feed this back sensitively"

"I liked the multi-media approach with videos and articles/written info and expert reflections"

"Very comprehensive, well-structured, and uses a range of media. Lots of practical, specific examples"

"I found the practical emphasis of this course a breath of fresh air"

"I've found some of the tools and graphics really helpful in summarising information to gather in an assessment"

"I feel like I have a much better toolkit of how to discuss sensitive and difficult topics, as well as a clearer idea of the biological, psychological, and social issues that contribute to difficulties in the family unit."
