

AUTISM AND SCHOOL REFUSAL 2022

WHO IS THE TRAINING FOR?

Mental Health Clinicians and other professionals such as psychologists, social workers, speech pathologists, occupational therapists, paediatricians, Headspace clinicians, psychiatrists and registrars. The training focuses on working with children and young people with autism.

WHO PROVIDES THE TRAINING?

Chrystie Mitchell is a senior mental health nurse who has wealth of experience working with neurodiverse young people and understanding their strengths and challenges, especially in the context of school attendance. Chrystie was previously the lead mental health clinician on the Royal Children's Hospital In2School team, leading students from chronic school refusal to school success. She currently works across tertiary health services.

Leonie Wilson is a senior speech pathologist specialising in ASD, developmental disorders, and mental health from infants to adolescents. She has previously worked with the RCH In2School team, supporting and advocating for the communication needs of young people struggling to attend school. She also works with specialist autism teams within the mental health department at RCH and RMH.

WHAT DOES THE TRAINING INCLUDE?

This workshop will discuss how the challenges of autism can be exacerbated by the expectations of mainstream schooling, and seeks to provide key learnings and therapeutic approaches to support autistic young people in the various stages of school refusal. The current model of the In2School program will be presented along with a case discussion. There is an opportunity for questions and further discussion. Morning tea will be provided.
